

Join us for a day of lively debate and discussion about the Scottish Referendum. We aim to give you a flavour of the debate that is taking place in Scotland and an opportunity to think about its implications for Britain and this region in particular.

Speakers confirmed so far include:

Our guest speaker James Mitchell, Professor of Public Policy at the University of Edinburgh, who will discuss the potential impact of a 'Yes' vote for the UK.

Dr David Seawright and Dr Stuart McAnulla, who will reflect on the changing relationship between Scotland and England.

Susan Dalgety and Lindsey Fraser, who will consider how the referendum campaign has progressed so far.

Dr Dan Coffey and Dr Iain Clacher, who will debate the economic case for and against independence.
